an easier way to be in control targetprocess

What is Targetprocess?

Targetprocess is a management tool that flexibly maps to different processes and projects in an organisation, helping managers and teams to focus on the things that matter. With overwhelming amounts and complexity of data in daily work across different teams, projects and processes, Targetprocess is a tool that helps you cut through the clutter when making decisions, visualising important information in an actionable and meaningful way.

Originally developed for the agile process market, the tool is so flexible it can be used in almost any type of organisation to visually control projects and operational management processes.

With a well-designed user interface, Targetprocess enables you to transform data into the information you need, displayed in the way you want to see it. The flexible approach enables each manager, team or individual see the information they need in a way that is relevant for them.

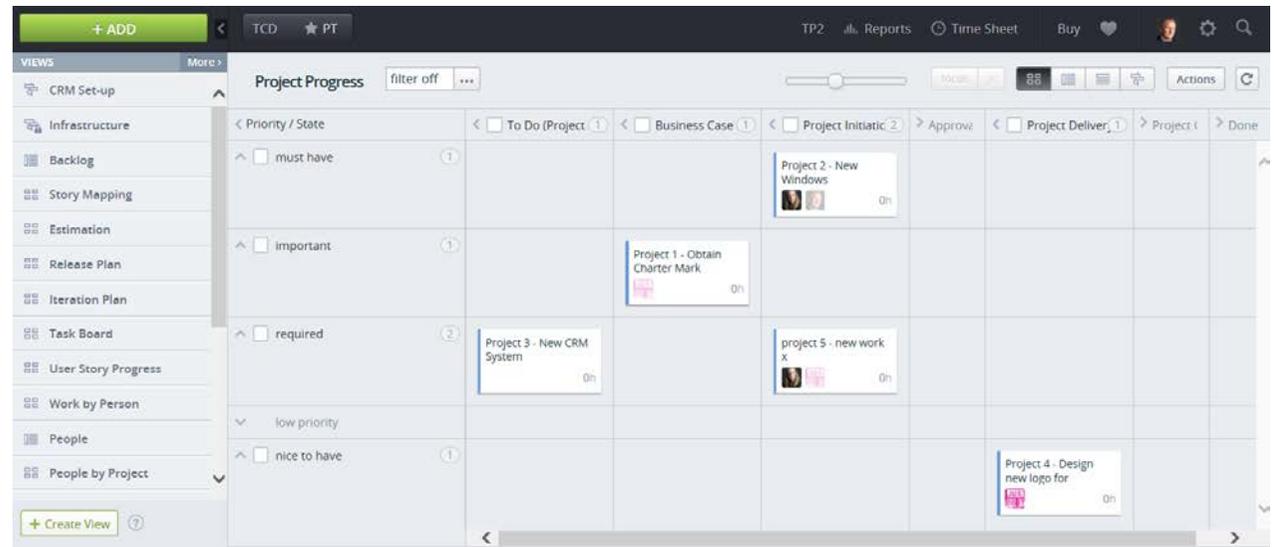

Why Targetprocess?

Targetprocess is the only tool we've found that works in your type of organisation. It enables managers to manage without needing to be a technical expert in any system or discipline.

It doesn't involve big investments in implementing complicated software.

Targetprocess is flexible and scalable – everyone can use it to see the information they need whenever they need it.

Adjusting plans and priorities is easy in Targetprocess – with the impact immediately visible.
